MAC PARTICIPATES IN McGILL CONFERENCE

"ADJUSTMENT TO A NEW AGE" KEYNOTE OF DEAN'S ADDRESS

"The problem facing Canadian teachers today is psychological adjustment to a new age," students of the Institute of Education were told Monday by Dean Hare, head of McGill's Faculty of Arts and Science.

Addressing the early morning assembly, Dean Hare made it clear that he attached great importance to the relationship between Canada's current international and national position and awareness of same in the classroom.

"Canada has reached a plateau and is beginning to slide a little," he said. After pointing out that our country is no longer as respected at world council tables as she was five or six years ago, he commented: "We face a time of international crisis."

"During the next ten years, we will have to admit that this century does not belong to us. We will have to compete economically, culturally and intellectually with Europe and other rising nations of the world."

He emphasized that the teacher has an important role to play in waking Canada's youth to the desperate need for competition on every level of international life. Only if to-morrow's citizens are aware of the danger of decline in this country's status, will they be able to do something about it.

"A major share of the responsibility lies with the teacher. We must somehow instil into the young a sense of urgency and a sense of alarm," he explained.

In closing, Dean Hare commented: "We have to realize that every Canadian must work harder. We must make every Canadian question if it is worthwhile to smoke quite so many ciparettes, etc., and realize that his easy-going life is going to suffer with the increase of world competition."

The Dean received an enthusiastic round of applause at the close of his address. He was introduced by Professor Monroe and thanked, on behalf of the students, by Professor Hall.

KEYNOTE ADDRESS AT MCWA

The only way to avoid tyrannical regime or a nuclear war, is by virtue of strengthening the Atlantic Alliance, Dr. Robert Strausz-Hupé told an audience in his keynote address at the Mc Gill Conference on World Affairs.

He explained that the strengthening of the Atlantic Alliance was just a stepping stone to eventual world unification.

He went on to say that it was imperative that the West unite. He did admit that such an undertaking might run the hazard of a nuclear war, but there is no policy which would not. "Every step we take is under the mouth of a nuclear gun".

He told his audience that the significant fact of modern history is that the nation-state system is breaking down, for it can no longer insure prosperitiy and security to its citizens and its economy. Dr. Strausz-Hupé said it must be replaced by a larger organization.

We have such an organization — the United Nations, but world unity using this organization would be impossible, as the U.N. is divided into three groups: the Western Bloc, the Communist Bloc, and the neutral countries, which do not want to work with either one.

Dr. Strausz - Hupé said "there is only one thing to do to deal with the problem of disintergration of the nation-state system, and that is to unite the people of the West". He explained that N. A.T.O. is much more important to us today than the U.N.

The basic formula, he said, is to have a strong Atlantic Alliance with a steering method,, contributed to by all the major powers; and that without the co-operation of any one member of the Alliance, il would weaken all the members. Dr. Strausz-Hupé suggested that the major powers be the United States, England, France and Germany. He added that without Germany "It would be impossible to demonstrate how an alliance can get stronger by getting weaker."

He went on to explain that the Communist strategy is an intelligent one. They have what we do not have — a

A DELEGATE'S REPORT

The McGill Conference on World Affairs took place at McGill University, on October 24th through 27th, and Macdonald College was represented by two delegates, Vivian Brieger and myself. We were among nearly one hundred delegates from forty universities and colleges throughout Northeastern United States and all of Canada. The Canadian contingent was of particularly widespread origin, there being representatives from both British Columbia and Newfoundland, as well as all points between. We were proud to be Macdonald College's first representatives to an affair of this magnitude. We hope we are not the last.

The MCWA, as outlined by John Garson, its chairman this year, has a threefold objective: To provide a forum whereby Canadian and American students can meet and discuss vital issues; whereby they can add to their fund of knowledge, through plenary sessions and discussion groups; and, most important, whereby they can gain a tolerance for and appreciation of the diversity of viewpoints and backgrounds that permeate our society. Using these objectives as my criteria, I do not hesitate to judge this year's conference a resounding success.

The primary topic of this Sixth MCWA was The New Europe. More specifically, attention was particularly focused upon the emerging European Economic Community, in all its varying aspects. The organization of the whole program was designed to allow each of the delegates to thoroughly delve into all the phases of this topic. And this most certainly was accomplished.

The Plenary Sessions were featured by three keynote addresses by imminent authorities from the U.S. and Great Britain, and a panel discussion by three McGill faculty members and a colleague from the University of Toronto. The first session in this series consisted of an enlightened elucidation upon the Challenge of the European Common Market by Dr. Seymor E. Harris of Harvard University. In the following session, an equally well qualified prognosticator of foreign affairs, Dr. Robert Strausz-Hupé of the University of Pennsylvania, delivered a stirring address that outlined his solutions to the predicaments that now face the Western World. The last keynote address was by a renowned statesman, the Rt. Hon. Viscount Amory, British High Commissioner to Canada. A former Chancellor of the Exchequer in Great Britain, his remarks were an exemplary indication of his renown as a master of international politics.

The fourth scheduled assembly of the Plenary Session was originally titled "Europe: Towards a Political Federation." In view of recent world developments, and in deference to the delegates interest in them, the topic was changed to the "Cuban Crisis." The panel was made up of Professors Michael Brecher, Maxwell Cohen, Michael Oliver, all of McGill, and Professor James Eayrs, of the University of Toronto. The discussion was varied in scope, yet relevant in nature, and served as an educated enlightinment of a development of extremely consequentional import.

Complementing these sessions, the delegates met in small discussion groups to investigate more intimately the New Europe. These seminars consisted of five meetings of about three hours each. Half of the time was devoted to aspects of the European Common Market; the balance of the program related to Germany and France, the Atlantic Alliance, and the future political structure of Western Europe. These discussions, chaired by graduate students and faculty members of McGill, were extremely profitable to the participants.

Thus the reader is intended to interpret that the conference was an academic success. But it was more than just that. It provided its delegates with an almost unique opportunity to meet their contempories on academic, intellectual, and social levels; in an atmosphere that provoked vivid discussions, inspired argument, and comaraderie, all of which speaks well of our generation. For this delegate the MCWA was an educational, enlightening, and entertaining experience, one that has considerably enhanced my college education. It is a pity that each and every one of you students here at Macdonald cannot participate in similar activities.

Prof Warkenstein To Be Speaker At AIC Meet

Professor B.P. Warkenstein will be guest speaker at the Monday meeting of the Macdonald College Branch of the A.I.C. He is to deliver a talk on the subject of recent studies on properties of clays. It is reported that the address will deal with characteristics such as swelling, water retention and plasticity which are important in agricultural and engineering use of soils.

Dr. Warkenstein has been studying clay properties applied to both of these uses for a number of years. This Summer, he visited laboratories in Britain and continental Europe, studying the concepts of availability to plants of water in clay soils.

A short business meeting will precede the address and branch student relations activities will be discussed. Time of the meeting is 8:30 p.m., in Room M-224.

WEST INDIAN SOCIETY

The West Indian Students Society got off to a late start this year with its first general meeting on Monday, October 26th. Mr. Carleton Davis was elected the President for the 1962-63 session; and Mr. D.A. Fielding of the English Department was elected Honorary President.

Other officers elected were: Secretary, Janis Rennie; Assistant Secretary, Hilary Harewood; Treasurer, George Buckmire; Social Convenor, Ted Wilson.

The Society plans a very active year for students, with a series of films and talks on West Indian culture, and a party at the Red Barn in the near future. The presentation of a West Indian booth at the Macdonald Royal is also planned.

We would like to extend a warm welcome to all students on Campus to come and learn something of West Indian life and culture. See you all at our next general meeting on Friday, November 2nd, at 6:00 o'clock p.m., in room M-227.

EDITORIALS . . . . . COMMENTS

The defeat of the football team last Saturday raises a question in our mind. Should as much time, energy and money be expended on inter-collegiate sports, especially in a small college like Macdonald.

We propose that more emphasis be laid on participation sports such as badminton, curling and riflery, where larger numbers of students can be accomodated. As it stands now, a select group are being trained, and outfitted at great expense. For what? The pitifully few spectators that turn out for each game. It is a mighty expensixe luxury.

In this years budget approximately $11,000 has been set aside for athletics. Of this sum $10,500 went to inter-collegiate teams, the majority to the football and hockey teams. The remaining $500 was given to the Joint Athletics Committee and eventually those clubs it sponsors, the Badminton Club, the Curling Club, the Rifle Club etc.

Surely more support should be given to the campus sporting activities. Based on participation, more people will compete and thus derive more pleasure from this form of athletics, than competition on an inter-collegiate level.

The money comes from the students and should be put to use in such a way that the maximum number of students will benefit. Based on the spectator attendance at the football games this fall it is obvious that there is not a great deal of student support.

We may be wrong in surmising that there is no support for athletics on an inter-collegiate level. If there is, the middle of the road attitude that prevails is no good. Lets take a stand one way or the other and cut out this wishey-washy attitude toward athletics.

LETTERS to the editor

To whom it may concern:

There are certain regulations in the Institute of Education, which I a student, find difficult to comprehend. The foremost of these is that concerning student dress while attending lectures. It has been rumoured that the students in the Institute of Education are supposed to wear ties and jackets to all classes. Why? Personally I can find no valid reasons to support this idea. However, I can think of a goodly number of reasons why we should not wear jackets and ties. In this letter, I will endeavor to express a few of these reasons with the hope that someone will listen to my plea.

First of all, jackets, ties and white shirts are expensive... Not only are they expensive to buy, they are expensive to keep clean, and it is difficult to keep one's clothes clean when the lecture rooms are filled with dust. I am not ashamed to state that I cannot afford to buy several sport jackets, dress slacks, suits and white shirts. (It is obvious that if one expects to stay clean one must have a very large wardrobe.) It is much more convient, easier and inexpensive to rinse out two or three sport shirts or sweaters.

It has been said to me, that I, as a perspective teacher should dress as one would. In reply, I say that I consider myself, as I am sure my fellow students do, quite mature enough to realize that when I go into a classroom or to an important event I am expected to wear a shirt and tie, and, I will quite willingly do so.

One of our professors stated, "I am here to assist you in the teaching of English." I agree 100 percent. That is exactly what he is here for. He is not here to teach us how to dress. He also stated that he felt it was a personal insult to him, for us to attend lectures without a shirt and a tie. I do not agree. No insult was meant. I attend lectures for the purpose of learning the subject matter that is being taught.

I am not trying to imply that it would be correct for students to attend lectures dressed indecently. If a person is wearing clean clothes has his hair combed, shoes well-shined, there is no reason for complaint. The thought of attending lectures in "jeans" and a T-shirt has never crossed my mind, but I have stated I do not see why we should "dress-up" either. I seriously believe that someday I will hold the lives of many people in my hands. To do this I must be a reasonably, sensible and mature person, and being, I feel, a reasonably, sensible and mature person, I think that the right to wear what we desire and can afford, within limits, is one of our democratic freedoms.

DAVE JEARY

To the Students' Society:

A situation has arisen in which the authority of the Students' Council has been questioned; it therefore appears that the role of the Council should be made perfectly clear to the student body.

The Students' Council is the supreme executive organization of the Students' Society formed to exercise control of the student activities subject to the University Statutes and to the jurisdiction of the Senate, and under the direction of the Students' Council, all other student organizations shall be centralized.

Previous to 1961, Student Activities Chairman sat on the Council, but at that time the constitution was changed so that the Council could function responsibly as an executive body without the prejudices of the activities chairmen. As such, the council provides the activities with the budgets and a high level of freedom in operation of the activity, but at all times has the authority to exercise control of the activity if such should be deemed necessary.

On Monday evening, members of the Council firmly expressed the opinion that as elected members of the executive of the Students' Society they are totally responsible for the actions of all activities and there can be no question of the right of the Students' Council to take action and make decisions that will bring these activities in line with Students' Council policy. This policy is going to be adhered to by your Students' Council.

The question that has raised this issue has been the decision of the Students' Council to appoint a temporary director to the Students' Recreational Centre. This decision was made by the Students' Council previous to Students' Council nominations and announced in the "Failt-Ye Times." Since $6,000 had been spent on the Recreational Centre for improvements that had been caused by vandalism, the Council felt obliged to execute firm and direct control of this area of student responsibility for a temporary period of time. This decision was made for the benefit of the Students' Society and every indication is that it was a good one.

Accusations of a different nature have also appeared through the editorials of the "Failt-Ye Times" and letters to the editor that have been anything but correct. These statements have most certainly been based on "hearsay" because until Monday evening no reporters or observers have attended any Student Council meeting. Student Council meetings are open to the Students' Society and it is highly recommended that students attend occasionally as observers to see what actually goes on. Observers on Monday evening were certainly treated to a long session of business transaction that was characterized by colourful parliamentary procedures such as calling councillors to order and throwing business off the order paper.

Plan to attend a Council meeting some Monday evening and see your student government in action.

ALEX CROWE,
President of Students' Society,
President of Students' Council.

ED. NOTE — Copies of the Students' Society Constitution are available from the Students Council House or your representative. We invite each of you to obtain a copy and decide for yourself if it provides for the action of the Students Council.

Council Corner

On monday, October 29, 1962, the Students Council held a meeting to which reporters from all important newspapers were invited. Even the Times was represented (I mean the Failt-Ye Times). The following is a report on the business that took place.

Three drink vending machines will be placed — one in each residence. In the Women's Residences they will be found in the T.V. Lounges and the one in Brittain Hall will be on the landing above the Coffee Shop. These vending Machines, which will make their appearence in three weeks will cost the Students Council about $130 for electrical and water outlets needed for operations. It is only proper that the 30% profit go to the Students Council as they are spending so much money for installation.

The M.A.A. proposed another ammendment which was adopted. This states that, if an athlete is on a team of one sport (eg. Soccer) and there is a track-meet on the day of a soccer game he is committed to the soccer game, but, he may miss practice for an activity in an other sport with the permission of his coach.

The Rifle Club, which is under the jurisdiction of the Joint Athletic Associations sought an additional budget to pay for scopes, a cabinet, and lightbulbs. These were needed to start the club, which until now was non-existent. After heated discussion, the marksmen were voted their money, mainly because this is the Rifle Club's first year and in future it should be self-supporting.

The structure of the Publicity Committee, of the Students Council is as follows:

The Director of Publicity must be a member of the Publications Department Executive and be a third year Home Ec. This director must keep a master plan of the four Student Council Bulletin Boards. This includes a knowledge of what, when, and for how long posters are to be on the boards. There are also a supervisor of Student Council Notice Boards, and a supervisor of P.A. systems. The latter is responsible to the Publications Department. The mobile P.A. is not to be used when classes are in session. It may not be used for election campaigns. The supervisor of Radio Publicity is responsible for daily broadcasts on CFOX. This supervisor must be a Soph Teacher appointed by S.T.S.

All types of publicity must be requester in writing. It was pointed out that the main reason for this system was to co-ordinate publicity.

The appointments of Jill Essar as Publicity Director, John Van Abbema as Clan editor, and Brian MacPherson as "Failt-Ye Times" editor were made official. All three are responsible to the Director of Publications.

The contract between the Department of Publications and "Le Devoir" for the "Failt-Ye Times" was accepted by the council. This contract states that there are to be 20 issues per year. The format is the same as "Le Devoir," 11½ inches wide with 5 columns. A four page issue is to be at the publisher's by 8:00 p.m. Thursday night. They deliver 1500 copies to us Friday morning. The paper uses standard newsprint. Eight page issues must be submitted Wednesdays. "Le Devoir" is not responsible if their building or equipment burns.

Because of last week's letter to the editor I almost expected to see autocracy in action. This was not the case. The meeting was run efficiently. If I were allowed to express my opinions I would say that our Students Council is a fine, hard working, efficient unit, but because this is only a report I will not say it.

THE INFORMAL CLASSROOM : Since Macdonald College is presently experimenting along the lines of Programmed Learning, and dealing successfully with this relatively new concept of teaching, may I suggest another field of progression in this flexible realm of education. The idea of the informal classroom situation stems from Ancient Greek times when the students gathered around the teacher and discussed matters of interest in an informal atmosphere. This type of atmosphere lends itself more than adequately to the acquisition of knowledge. A classroom, whether it be found in school or college, can easily adapt itself to this human approach of the communication of ideas. As it stands now, the students (especially those attending this College) are merely machines that take down facts which are fed to them and automatically, more or less, throw them back at examination time. The conference groups now in existence are a very poor substitute ! What we need is a seminar-type of period for each subject at least once a week. In these classes one could relax, smoke, and thus be able to discuss relevant topics to a greater degree. In this manner the reserved person is more likely to contribute his ideas and experiences with greater fluency. Instead of having to resort to the coffee shop atmosphere to hold these controversial discussions and vehement arguments, we shoul have access to rooms where with sufficient supervision we will be able to penetrate topics which are of interest to us and be able to gain experience and benefit from the thoughts as expressed by the others.

POINTS TO PONDER : There is a sign on the second floor of the main building which says that there is to be no smoking on that floor. Since it is the practise of everyone who smokes to smoke on that floor I can see no need for such signs to remain. If a visitor were to see everyone violating the laws of the college they would get a pretty dim view of us. Why not take them down or else enforce them ? I, personally, cannot see their value ... There is a certain movie which has not been released as yet but I am sick of it already. The makers of this film are really out to push it as far as they can. They have even made a record of the theme song. The name of the movie is, of course, The Longest Day. Ugh, there's that name again... I assure you, I am not yielding to payola; but the Strictly Instrumental Show on C.F.O.X. each night at nine o'clock is really the greatest. Many people find the music that is played easy to listen to while they are doing their homework. Congratulations to Lakeshore Radio... How about our football team ? They tried hard last week but come on fellows, 84 to 0 is a little ridiculous ... Where did all those girls with casts on come from ? I've never seen so many casts in one week. It must be the extra curricular activities ... By the way, thanks to all those girls who supplied us with cigarettes and other things over the past week ... A friend suggested that the Kleenex Co. and the Macdonald Tobacco Co. should get together and produce a cigarette with wet strength paper for people who walk through the tunnel between the main building and Brittain Hall ... If you value your life don't stand under the clock at twenty minutes after twelve around lunch time. It seems that the whole college runs to the dining hall every noon hour. I have seen a herd of buffalo make less noise than some of the students here ... Here we go again, only forty-five more shopping days left until Christmas.

BEEF OF THE WEEK : The purpose of the bell which rings at the end of each lecture is to signify the end of each lecture. The bell should thus be regarded as serving this purpose. Lately, this bell has been repeatedly ignored to the extent of classes having to remain behind for five or ten minutes and even into the next lecture. It is common courtesy (not to mention an obligation) for the students to be in their seats for the beginning of each lecture. It should also be common courtesy for the lecturer to finish on time. Students of the Institute of Education are told time and again the importance of planning their lessons to meet a certain time limit. Surely those who preach this should follow their own teachings. If no other "BEEF" is noted by the proper people, let it be known that this is entirely on the level !

ROYAL NOTES

By Pam Carter

We were very pleased to receive so many good suggestions for this year's theme and would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who helped us by submitting their enteries. Congratulations are in line for Hilary Harewood, a 4th year Home Ec. student, who wins two tickets to this year's Green and Gold. Her theme is "Macdonald in Focus". We feel that this expresses what we hope to accomplish in our Royal.

This week I have one small request. We need pictures of last year's Royal to use in our publicity campaigns this year. Anyone who has any pistures which he thinks would be useful is asked to contact Joe Knox, Brittain Hall, as soon as possible.

The date for the Royal has now been confirmed as Friday, February 22 so keep that day in mind as one that you will certainly enjoy.

Class Plays

Wednesday night an innovation to play night was added by the Class of '64. The evening began with a scintillating rendition of several popular tunes. In the brief break between this introductory entertainment and the play itself, a momentary investigation of the program revealed a well-planed and well-executed introduction to the evening's entertainment. Congratulations are due the originators of the program. Now on to the play itself.

I personally enjoyed and approved both the choice of play and the method in which it was presented, scenery, acting, etc. This is partially explained by the fact that I never came in contact with "The Valiant" in High School as many did. However, a poll of opinions around the campus after the play revealed that many felt that much more could have been done with the subject. However, I congratulate everyone who participated in the evening's entertainment and I felt that, for me, it was ¾ of an hour well spent.

RISE AND SHINE

Last Wednesday, the Class of '63 presented their play — RISE AND SHINE by Elda Cadogan.

On arrival, the program immediately caught my eye with the graveyard on the front cover. The R.I.P. Teachers did not escape my sight but I will amke no comment on that.

Congratulations are due all those who had a part, either directly or indirectly, with the presentation of the play. The four scenery "inspriationalists" did a good job in their department. Make-up and lighting both created the expected effect but unfortunately I couldn't hear "the insistent excited voice" of the prompter.

Producer Wood and Director Ilves did an excellent job in their capacity and were probably substantially assisted by the fact that they had two estimable actors and two nearly quintessent actresses. Miss Harwood deserves special commendation.

In summary, the performance of the play was well worth attending and the evening was an outstanding success.

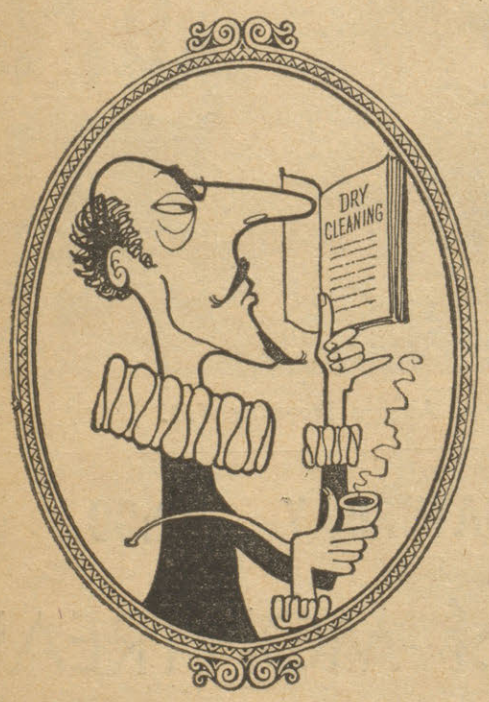
Whatever became of:

Walt Raleigh,
CLASS OF '71?



One of the outstanding botanists ever to graduate, Walt built his early reputation on his major thesis "The Care and Cultivation of Nicotinia for Profit." An excellent athlete, Raleigh is fondly remembered for an incident which occurred in his sophomore year. Shortly before the Big Game, Walt impulsively threw his football sweater over a puddle which lay in the path of that year's Beauty Queen. It was the only game on record in which eleven of our varsity squad wore numbers and one a large dirty footprint. After graduation, Walt went overseas to spark up the consumption of Virginia tobacco in England. He was "capped" for England against Spain on several occasions. He was finally "de-capped" after a local scrimmage against a team from the Tower of London. A monument in his memory is being proposed by a local manufacturer of filters.

MAC OUT OF PLAYOFFS

Macdonald obviously came out second best last Saturday against the Warriors, and the defeat was a big disappointment to Mac. Loyola was blocking and tackling much more sharply than Mac, and the Loyola quarterback, who completed 28 out of 29 passes, had a good day, which, I am sure, even he would admit. Our offense started out with a big gain to Rick Kool and finally got a safety touch in the next series of play. The backs were running well, but Sam had a bad day in the passing department. The defense, however, did not do as well, and, because of the many injuries, played lacking men sometimes. A lot of players played both ways to compensate for the injured men.

Ron Augustine, a hefty right tackle (5'8", 220), despite a cast over his elbow, turned in a "blood and guts" performance. Besides opening huge holes for our backfielders and blocking viciously for Sam, he stopped a sure touchdown drive single-handed. On the defense, Dave Lees, a 5'9", 165 pounds safety back, also played a good game. He was caught many times without two defensive backs and was forced to cover two men. Pepsi Piela, who played both ways until his severe injury to his wrist, also played well. All the linebackers, Alex Barontseff, Gary Waltho and Dave Appleton, gave their best, but it wasn't good enough.

The team may play an exhibition game here tomorrow against U. of M., depending on the weather, and if so come out and watch !

Although the Soccer Team ended the season on somewhat the same note as the Football (losing to McGill 10-0), nevertheless the players had fun and gave their best. Standouts for the McGill game were John Elwin and Cris Ornelli and our only goal scorer Eugene Terry. The players give their sincere thanks to their Coach, Jim Widdop, for all his helpfulness and patience, and wish him the best in the next season.

HOCKEY :

Once again hockey has begun at Macdonald, and Wednesday .night .saw .forty eager .students .don .their blades. It looks as if we will have a team in contention this year. With football nearing a close, the rest of the boys will be out seeking their spots on the Green and Gold team. Returning from last years squad are Howard Philips, Paul Saunders and Dave Slater. Cliff Goodwin and Harris Shufelt are expected at the conclusion of football.

The Failt-Ye wishes the best of luck to Coach Pugh and his 1962/1963 edition of the MAC AGGIE hockey team.
